New and Ongoing Adult Sunday School Classes

...at the crossroads of real life and abundant grace.

New Class for Adults

Belonging to God. We are pleased to announce a new class designed for adults, especially parents, who want to explore the meaning of Christian faith, and to discover avenues for sharing that faith in the home. The study will be based on Belonging to God: A First Catechism, and will be taught by Collier Harvey and Karen Enslin, both of whom will bring a wealth of wisdom and experience to the class. The class is designed to include both teacher presentation and ample time for group questions and discussions.

Location: Church Parlor (lower level of the church)

Dates: October 1—November 19, 2006

Covenant Class

The Covenant Class is an ongoing class made up of adults of all ages that studies a wide variety of topics. Though the class is primarily lecture-based, there is typically lively discussion and a wonderful sense of fellowship. The class will begin a 4-week study of pain and suffering on October 1, and will then move to a study of spiritual gifts. The class is taught by Dick Miller.

Location: Room 119 (lower level of the church)

Dates: Every Sunday

Disciples Class

The Disciples Class is an ongoing class made up of adults of all ages that typically studies a current theology or other church text. The class is a nice blend of presentation by the teacher and group discussion. The class will begin a study of Tom Long's recent book called Testimony: Talking Ourselves into Being Christian on October 1, 2006. The class is taught by John Irvine and Mark Davis.

Location: Room 105 (lower level of the church)
